What's Bugging That Cat?
Feline Parasites and Catastrophes

What's Bugging that Cat?

You don't have to be a "crazy cat person" to recognize that the cat is a unique creature with very distinct behaviors, physiological functions and health care needs. Despite being the most popular pet in America, relatively few cats ever visit a veterinary hospital especially if they are considered "indoor only". Our discussion will cover many aspects of the challenges in feline medicine from why it is so hard for owners to get a cat into a box to the distinct ways that cats manifest heartworm infection and mask symptoms of severe disease in general. We will take a close look at the dramatic increase in feline heartworm disease and discuss why the prevalence has eluded the veterinary community and the public. The latest thoughts on physiology and prevention will be shared.

Due to limited space registration is limited to one doctor and one technician per practice.
